FIREBOATS SAVE THE DAY WHEN

MAINS FAIL. Lower West Side Blaze a Good Illustration of What Sea Water Mains Would Do -Frozen Hydrants and Inadequate Pressure Hamper Work of Firemen.

The big blaze in the block of five story buildings bounded by Washington, Thirteenth Fourteenth streets, and Ninth avenue early yesterday morning, furnished an unanswerable argument in favor of the installation of a salt water auxiliary supply. The fresh water proved useless on account of frozen hydrants and low pressure, and for almost an hour the huge tongues of fire licked up with apparent relish as much of it as a four alarm supply of engines could pump up to them.

Then the fireboats got in action and opened with their sea water batteries. salt water auxiliary supply will provide in every important part of the city, were poured into the upper stories with a force that sent the bricks and mortar flying in every direction. The crackling of the fire was drowned by the hissing of steam, and the atmosthere became saturated with vapor. The firmes were being choked by the terrible force of the deluge from the fireboats. The firemen afterward agreed that no more convincing demonstration of the efficacy of salt water in quenching a big blaze of salt water in quenching a big blaze could be asked for.

The fire was discovered just before midnight by Night Watchman Patrick Gore and Cornelius Keating. It seemed to be on the fourth floor of the Thirteenth and Washington street corner of the building. Keating ran to Fourteenth street and Ninth avenue, but was unable to work the box at that dorner. In the meantime a poleman heard Gore's cries of fire and turned in an alarm from Washington and Gansevoort streets.

This delay gave the fire considerable headway, so that when the first engines reached the scene flames were shooting from the three upper floors and were rapidly rom the inree upper hoors and were rapidly spreading nor hward.

The ground floor of the block on the Washington street side is occupied by eight produce dealers, and firemen undertook to fight the blaze from the sloping, io-covered sheds that project over the sidewalk. It was a slippery and perilous postion and they had a hard time dragging the hose lines up after them. O hers started to attack the fire from the fire

No sooner had they established them-No sooner had they established themselves in a fairly secure posi ion, however, than a terrific report rang through the building and the flames gushed forth from windows with new fury. It was afterward learned that the desfening bang had been caused by a five ton press belonging to the Autographic Register Company on the top floor creahing through floor after floor to the cellar.

Soon after the crash Chief Croker ordered all the men from the sheds and fire escapes, which had become untenable on account of the intense heat and falling débris. Then the firemen attempted to hold the fire in theck from the street with hose lines attached to hydrants, but this was futile. The water pressure was low, barely forcing thin, sached to hydraurs, but this was futile. The water pressure was low, barely forcing thin, feeble streams to the second story.

In the meantime the fireboat Abram S. Hewitt had steamed into position in the North River. Her four and six inch hose lines were run out and siamesed into the water tower on Washington street. But just as everything was in readiness a dummy freight engine, driven by a dummy freight engine, came puffing down West street and cut the two lines of hose.

By the time the trouble caused by this the time the trouble caused by this

SALT WATER CHOKES BIG FIRE | bit of stupidity had been straightened out the fireboat New Yorker had taken up her position beside the Abram S. Hewitt, out the fireboat New Yorker had taken up her position beside the Abram S. Hewitt, bringing the sea water artillery up to a total of seven pieces—four 6-inch lines of hose and three 4-inch lines. The minute they were put into action the fire, which had been gaining headway by leaps and bounds, wavered before the terrific volley of salt water and quickly simmered down to a very ordinary blaze. At 4 o'clock Chief Creker pronounced the fire under control.

"This fire," said a prominent fire officer afterward, "is the best illustration of the utility of salt water in fire fighting that I have ever seen."

Besides the Autographic Register Company on the fourth and fifth floors, and the produce dealers on the ground floor, the building was occupied by the Pincus Shoe Manufacturing Company on the third floor and the New York Knitting Mills on the second floor. The damage, which was greatest in the upper stories, is estimated by Chief Creker at $150,000.

OLD JOHN MOORE IS DEAD. Washington Marketman, Who Lived in Queer Cabin, Passes Away.

John Moore is dead, and the corner of Washington Market that he had so long made peculiarly his own is quiet. Over his stall was a hanging cabin where he made his home

Moore built it himself on the model of Robinson Crusoe's, and like that gentleman, his means of entrance was a ladder. Rumor has it that Old John was once very rich and that his bust adorns the walls of a college which he helped endow. But the riches were eaten up by inventions which the old man backed, and it was then that he hill his horizon about the factories and the second he built his hanging cabin and retired from the world.

He had been identified with the market since 1835, and his father traded there be-fore him. For years the old man had been in ill health, and his rooms were full of bottles and pill boxes. When he failed to appear at his stall yesterday morning one of his fellow butchers climbed up to his cabin and found the old man sitting in a chair, dead. Although a quiet and retiring man, Moore was very popular with the Washington Market butchers. They will give him a splendid funeral him a splendid funeral.

TUG RAMS A FERRYBOAT. The Unity Hits the Sterlington and Both Are Put Out of Business.

The Frie ferryboat Sterlington, an old wooden sidewheeler, while nearing her Chambers street slip from Hobcken early yesterday morning, with about 200 work people aboard, was rammed by the Commercial Union towboat Unity, bound upstream, and so badly damaged on the starboard bow that she was laid up for repairs. The Unity was also knocked out of commission, her stem being broken.

There was a misunderstanding of signals,

There was a misunderstanding of signals, it is said, and the ferryboat was driven, down on the Unity by the ebbing tide. Ice in the river interfered with the free movement of the tug. The bow of the tug went through the ferryboat's guard and tore up a part of the deck flooring, but did not penetrate the hull.

The two boats clung together until the Sterlington was nearly into her slip. Three tugs responded to the disabled boats' distress whistles, got lines aboard the Unity, and dragged her from the gap. Passengers aboard the ferryboat, nearly all men, were startled, but not much excited. Nobody was hurt.

New Fire Exits for St. Thomas's Church. Plans have been filed with Building Superintendent Hopper by R. W. Gibson, as architect for St. Thomas's Episcopal Church, for the construction of two additional staircases leading from the gallery and for two new double door exits, to comply with the recent requirements of the Building De-partment for exits in case of fire.

DR. GIRDNER WOULD HAVE COAL DELIVERED IN BAGS.

Church Bells Should Not Ring or Steam Whistles Toot-Hucksters Should Not Cry Like the Cherubim-Wood Should Split With Muffled Axes.

Dr. John H. Girdner of 47 West Seventyfirst street, who is a great and good friend of William Jennings Bryan, who was formerly president of the Anti-Noise Society and who has written much on the general subject of noise, says that he is being harassed constantly by people writing to him and calling upon him to solicit his assistance in efforts to keep the city quiet. The doctor thinks that it is up to the Health Department to take some steps toward preventing injury to health by "annoying, injurious and unnecessary" noises. Dr. Girdner expressed his thoughts on the subject to a Sun man yesterday.

Noise in this city, he said, injures health in many ways; it interrupts and prevents sleep and often affects the nerves so that nervous prostration results. But all persons are not affected alike by noise, just as all persons are not affected alike by the motion of a ship. Many people who are made uncomfortable by noise don't know made uncomfortable by noise don't know that they are uncomfortable, simply because they don't appreciate the fact that they would be more comfortable without the noise. The noise in New York, Dr. Girdner asserted, also reduces the power of the physical organism to resist disease and is one of the contributing causes of insanity.

Now, Dr. Girdner doesn't think that all the noise in the city could be stopped, but it seems to him that most of it could be if the existing laws were only enforced. In the first place, if he were the city authorities, he would put the screws down hard on all factory whistles and church bells in the residence districts. He would also cork up the hucksters and scissor grinders. Furthermore, he would stop the grinders. Furthermore, he would stop the beating of carpets and rugs in yards and on roofs and on fire escapes near other houses, and he would put a stop to the keeping of dogs and cats and chickens, if they disturbed only one person. And he would see that all loud talking and unnecessary yelling—"noises that disturb sleep and rack people's nerves while awake"—and all whistling on the street and in the cars were stopped. All this, Mr. Bryan's friend thinks, could be accomplished by simply enforcing the existing statutes.

But much more could be done to make life But much more could be done to make life pleasanter, he believes, if people wouldn't split kindling wood and repair furniture in the open, and if steel were cut by a saw and not by a hammer and chisel, and if men would only line their coal chutes with wood, as Dr. Girdner does; and if coal that is now dumped on the sidewalk were carried in bags, thus avoiding the "extremely penetrating and disagreeable noise made by the scraping of a steel shovel over stone;" and finally if the men who handle ash barrels, boxes and such things would "just be a little careful." All this, too, Dr. Girdner thinks, could be accomplished if a reasonable effort were made to enforce the laws. able effort were made to enforce the laws.

Dr. Girdner thinks that special officers should be detailed to follow up strains of music and other poise clusters.

POLICE HEADS IN CONFERENCE. McAdoo Evidently Told the Captains and Inspectors to Keep the Lid Down. Police Commissioner McAdoo had a long conference yesterday afternoon with Deputy Commissioners McAvoy and Cowan, Chief Inspector Cortwright, Borough Inspector Brooks. Inspector Titus of the Second Inspection district, Inspector Walsh of the Fourth Inspection district, Capt. Cottrell, who was recently assigned to the Tenderloin; Capt. Hayes, the new commander of the West Forty-seventh street station, and Capt. Tighe of the Mercer street station.

After the conference, which aroused all sorts of talk about Police Headquarters, Commissioner McAdoo was asked what had been discussed.

had been discussed. "Nothing in particular," he answered.
"I just gave the captains and inspectors a good, wholesome, police talk and an outline of my ideas as to how police matters should be conducted."

be conducted." be conducted."

The Commissioner parried questions as to why those particular captains and inspectors had been summoned, and as to whether his talk had referred to gambling. It was just a general talk on "police business," was all he would say. None of those at the conference cared to tell what happened, but one was heard to remark that the Commissioner apparently "meant business."

There was reason to believe that the Mayor's announcement that the "lid" is to be held down was repeated by the Commissioner with even more emphasis than the Mayor gave.

BEQUEST WITH $450,000 STRING. Gift of $50,000 to the Woman's College of Baltimore if Its Debt Is Wiped Out.

BALTIMORE, Feb. 27 .- The Rev. Dr. John F. Goucher, president of the Woman's College, has received a letter from the trusees of the late H. A. Massey of Toronto, Green Case Postponed Again.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Feb. 27.—Arguments in the case of Senator Green will not be heard at Albany next week, on account of the illness of United States District Attorney Curtiss. By an agreement made to-day another adjournment will be taken to a later date. Judge Hazel of Buffalo will probably hear the case, as Judge Ray has pneumonia, and to-day was only slightly improved. It is expected the arguments will occupy four days.

tees of the late H. A. Massey of Toronto, saying that a bequest of $50,000 will be paid by them within two years if the trustees of the college will raise $450,000 to wipe out the amount of the debt of the institution.

Dr. Goucher is now out of the city, and no steps have yet been taken to secure from the Baltmore trustees the necessary $450,000.

James E. Hooper, one of the trustees, is pessimistic about the proposition. "I am sorry," he said, "to hear that the Toronto bequest has a conditional clause, for I fear wewlil never be able to secure the amount."

WON'T USE BOY CHOIRS.

Only Suggests This Course. ORANGE, N. J., Feb. 27.—Announcement was made in Seton Hall College Newark here to-day, on word received by Mgr. John Sheppard, vicar-general of the diocese. Catholic churches will not be followed in New Jersey.

"The Pope," says Mgr. Sheppard, "has not issued a bull concerning women in church choirs, but has merely suggested that it would be better to have boy singers. It is not compulsory upon the churches to follow the suggestion."

In a letter to Mgr. Sheppard, Bishop O'Connor, who is travelling abroad, writes that he celebrated mass in the famous grotte at Lourdes, France, which privilege is seldom extended to foreign priests.
